From the Editor

I have shifted office for the next two months, travelling through 19 of the 50 USA states. As I'm writing I am overlooking the Gulf of Mexico from a beach in Destin, Florida, and everything is really picture-perfect. I am surrounded by American holiday-makers that seem not to have a care in the world, and everything seems to be pretty much 'normal.' However, on a different level altogether there is a massive war going on, and symptomatic of this war is the recent declaration by President Obama to legalize same-sex marriage in the whole of the USA. While this decision by the highest power in this country will surely have severe repercussions on their economy, it is also a real and dangerous picture of the world at large. No matter where we go there seems a real and decisive turning back from the ways of God, whether it is a national apostasy, secularism, humanism or the simple disregard of God in all matters pertaining to life. The writing has been on the wall for some time now, with global culture working hard at desensitizing the human race to the presence, reality and ways of God. We see it everywhere. Morals, standards and ethics have slowly degraded – we often hear ourselves say, "What was totally unacceptable just 10 years ago now seems to be the norm." I remember when I was at school the disgrace that went with divorce. At that time divorce wasn't common, and when it happened it was nearly worthy of a front-page headline. While this was about 30 years ago, today we see divorce being the 'norm', with nearly 60% of all marriages not making the 10-year anniversary mark. Fashion styles have slowly lessened the amount of fabric used (while charging more!), and celebrities all over the world are sporting near-nudity fashions. Disrespect for authority figures (parents, guardians, government) has escalated to anarchistic proportions, and the results worldwide are frightening.

The picture I am painting is truly negative, but for believers and lovers of God there is a huge positive spin-off in all of this. Jesus commissioned us to be the light and the salt on the earth, meaning that we are the carriers of a message of hope, a gospel of life and a solution of love. So instead of curling up in a foetal ball and bemoaning the current state of affairs, He wants us to stand up straight and clothe ourselves with His truth – 'gird our loins' as it were! We have the message!

The Church is facing a critical point of decision and in the future we will see the false Church prosper with a message of compromise, and a dark message clothed in the guise of light. There is a time coming when the truth will be shouted down, but the more it is suppressed, the more we need to make sure we are dressed in the full armour of protection God has given us – the helmet, sword and belt should be our constant fashion statement. Exciting times indeed!

I trust that you will find inspiration in this issue of MyFaith Magazine, and that the authors will equip you for a time such as this. Stay close to God and His Word, and never forsake your decision to exercise a constant walk of faith.

Be a Doer Not Just a Hearer

By André and Jenny Roebert

God's Word is alive and powerful and has within it the ability and purpose to produce the force of faith on the inside of whoever chooses to hear and receive it in their lives.

Why is faith so important to every believer? Well, simply put, without faith, it is impossible to please God. Perhaps it's easier to understand this statement by talking about what brings God pleasure. Scripture states that the Lord delights in the prosperity of His servants (Psalms 35:27), which is easy to accept because the blessing of prosperity is exactly what was on His heart for us when Jesus went to the cross. Jesus died to redeem us from the curse that has been over mankind since the fall of man. When we as believers choose to walk in the fullness of that redemption, I believe it brings God much pleasure. The fullness of God's blessing, His anointing, the freedoms Jesus secured for us, all of these benefits were intended, by a loving God, for every man to enjoy.

And the only way to walk in the fullness of these benefits, is by faith (Hebrews 6:12). When we put faith to use, it will cause every area of our lives to align with God's promises concerning us. However, unless we put it into use, it just remains dormant inside of us - with no effect. Everything Jesus did for us on the cross becomes a manifest reality in our lives, only when we exercise our faith.

But what does it mean to exercise our faith? The English dictionary says that exercise is: putting into action, use, operation, or effect. So in order to see the supernatural promises of God become a reality in this natural world, we need to put our faith into action, we need to put it into use and operation. We need to put our faith into effect.

James 2:20 says, "... faith apart from [good] works is inactive and ineffective and worthless..." The word works here means corresponding action. So, you can read James 2:20, like this, "...faith apart from a corresponding action is inactive and ineffective and worthless..."

In other words, if the Word of God has instructed us to do something in order to set a promise into effect in our lives, then we actually need to do the corresponding action that is connected to that promise.

Let's take the promise in 2 Corinthians 9:7,8 as an example. It states that a purposeful, cheerful, prompt to do it giver will receive abundant grace "... so that you may always and under all circumstances and whatever the need - be self-sufficient [possessing enough to require no aid or support and furnished in abundance for every good work and charitable donation]."

The promise of abundant grace and financial blessing is linked to the corresponding action of cheerful giver!

The problem, however comes when we hear the promises of God, faith rises up on the inside of us, yet we fail to activate that faith by doing the corresponding action. There is a 'tug of war' that takes place between our hearts and minds. As born again children of God, we are born into the kingdom of God. The language of that kingdom is faith. So the language of our spirits is faith. However, the language of our minds is reason. And the two are opposed to each other. They are constantly fighting against each other.

That is why scripture instructs us to constantly renew our thinking to the language of the kingdom of God - the language of faith. A little while ago, I heard Kenneth Copeland say that before we can become fluent in a foreign language, we need to think in that language. So for our minds to become fluent in the language of the kingdom of God - we must keep them renewed to the Word that produces faith! If we don't, at the times our spirits want to respond to the faith that has risen on the inside of us, our minds will resort to reason and not recognise the language of faith. And reason will usually win, causing us to not follow through on the corresponding action that would activate our faith to receive the promise.

James 1:22 says, "But be doers of the Word [obey the message], and not merely listeners to it, betraying yourselves [into deception by reasoning contrary to the Truth]."

You see, when we hear God's promises, and faith rises up on the inside of us, yet we don't do, or obey the Word, we betray ourselves from receiving the reality of that promise. Simply because reasoning convinced us to not obey the Word.

As powerful and vitally important as faith is in our lives, its ability to cause the supernatural promises of God to become a reality in our natural lives depends on our obedience to do what the Word says.

I once read that if we choose to be a doer of God's revelations and not just a hearer, His river of Divine provision will never cease to flow into our lives. ✦

NEVER GIVE UP

BY JOYCE MEYER

It is said that in the heat of a battle during World War II, Winston Churchill gave a speech that consisted of one sentence. He said, "Never, never, never, never give up!" I don't know if that's really the only thing he said, but I do believe the Holy Spirit is speaking that one thing to many of us today. Don't give up, because God has so much in store for our lives.

DON'T STAY STUCK!

It's very easy to want to give up when things get hard. Sometimes people get stuck where they are and don't know how to get out, so they think giving up would be easier. It may be they feel they're not smart or talented enough...maybe something traumatic happened to them...or they may have failed at something or made terrible mistakes in the past.

But the Holy Spirit anoints us to press in, to press on and go through to our victory, even if things don't go the way we planned. Failure does not mean there are no more options. You can learn from past mistakes...history is a good teacher. Try again...if nothing else, you'll learn what works and what doesn't work and go from there. You can turn your obstacle into an opportunity to grow wiser and mature spiritually.

God wants us to live a good life. However, there is no elevator ride to a good life. Trust and perseverance are a must. John 10:10 tells us that "the thief comes in order to steal and kill and destroy. I came that they may have and enjoy life, and have it in abundance (to the full, till it overflows). The Holy Spirit will lead us one step of faith at a time into the good life God has planned for each of us.

NEW BEGINNINGS

There will always be obstacles to overcome. There will always be "issues" to get past. But there will also be do-overs...second chances...new beginnings. It's never too late; just don't give up! God is all about fresh starts. He forgives our sins, our mistakes and failures when we repent. We need to learn to forgive ourselves as well. Stop remembering what He has forgotten and enjoy your life. You don't have to keep paying for your past, just receive His forgiveness and go on. You are a new creation in Christ! (See 2 Corinthians 5:17.)

Because of that, all things are possible with God. The Holy Spirit leads us, one step at a time, and gives us resurrection power to enjoy our lives even when our circumstances are not so enjoyable.

Of course the enemy will throw up all the roadblocks he can...that's just who he is. But with the Holy Spirit leading the way, you don't have to get stuck in a difficult moment or season. Stay focused, determined and obedient and He will lead you through.

That is the key...obedience. Work with the Holy Spirit. Yield to His guidance and don't resist Him. How many times has the Holy Spirit prompted you to do something, but because it doesn't feel good you resist His lead? For example, He may encourage you to give up certain friends. But you love them...and you want to be loved, so you ignore that nudge in your heart. But God just wants to lead you to better, healthier relationships. He is always looking out for your best interest.

IN BETWEEN TIME

It's the "in-between" time when you will have to persevere. And whatever happens during your "in-between," know that it is an opportunity to grow stronger in your faith and relationship with the Lord.

When the Holy Spirit spoke to my heart while I was making my bed one morning years ago, He told me I would travel the world teaching His Word and have a large teaching ministry. But there was definitely an "in-between" period for me. I had to learn some things...like how to be in authority by being under authority. I had to learn submission and humility...and I had to forgive.

I remember one time during my "in-between," when I held on to the leg of my desk and cried because I wanted to run. I begged God to help me to stay put. Thanks to the Holy Spirit's help, I persevered and endured several years of testing, growth and development, and eventually began my full-time ministry at the age of 42. But it didn't happen overnight for me. It didn't happen so quickly for Moses, David, Ruth or Paul either. It won't happen in a snap for anyone, but if you won't give up, God's plan for your life will happen.

Even if you've had a bad foundation in life you can have a new beginning...a do-over... a fresh start—and a great finish. Just be determined to never give up! 📌

A FRIEND WHO STICKS CLOSER THAN A BROTHER

BY ANGUS BUCHAN

Just not so long ago we observed the Pentecost season and it always warms my heart when I am reminded of the tremendous sacrifice that the Lord Jesus Christ made for you and I. In John 16:7 (NKJV) the Lord Jesus said "Nevertheless I tell you the truth. It is to your advantage that I go away; for if I do not go away, the Helper will not come to you; but if I depart, I will send Him to you."

I had the privilege of speaking at an open air meeting on a rugby field in Vereeniging on a very warm winter's day and as we spoke about the person of the Holy Spirit a beautiful gentle breeze blew through that rugby stadium and people were amazed at how God physically impressed Himself upon us. I think the biggest problem amongst believers is that they minimise the reality of the third person of the God Head, namely our Lord Holy Spirit. That unbeliever limits God to work on our behalf. Horatius Bonar a very famous Scottish hymn writer who loved the Lord passionately said "All unbelief is the belief of a lie," and of course we know exactly who the that without Gods supernatural intervention you and I are not going to make it. Let us start to pay more homage, more respect, and more love, towards our Lord Holy Spirit. Jesus knew the potential of the Holy Spirit to help us so much that He said it is more advantageous for you that I go away because if I do not go away I cannot send the Helper. We need to cultivate our relationship with Him. Many people say,

"But I can't hear Him speak and I can't see Him." No, but He is there. Just like Jesus says you must be born again and Nicodemus said "How can a fully grown man go back into his mother's womb?" and the Lord said "You don't know where the wind comes from, you don't know where it blows to, but it is still blowing." That is the same with the Holy Spirit, we need to believe by faith and that comes purely by spending time reading Gods Word, spending time in prayer and fasting. The Lord doesn't say that we must tempt Him but he says that we can test Him just like Gideon did with that fleece and the Lord honoured him every time. Let us not neglect or reject such a beautiful gift that has been given to us.

Since I have been baptised in the Holy Spirit and God has given me a beautiful new language my life has been enriched. When I have to leave my dear wife which is quite often to go overseas to preach the Gospel, I get extremely lonely. I am a real home sick farm boy, but I call upon the Holy Spirit, my Friend and He is indeed such a comforter and reassures me that Jill is well, that the Lord can look after her even better than I can and that encourages me.

May God bless you as you continue to trust the Holy Spirit for every aspect of your life and of your family and your business.

Yours in Christ's service

father of all lies is, the deceiver of the brethren, it is the devil himself. He hates God so much that his primary weapon is to bring "deception" amongst the believer and of course if you can't believe then God can't work.

The woman with the issue of blood who said to herself "If I could just touch the hem of His garment, I will be healed." She was desperate, she had no money, all her money had been used up and no doctor could help her (Matthew 9:22) When she touched the hem of His garment and the Bible says that that issue of blood that had been flowing for twelve years was instantly dried up and she was healed. Jesus turned around and said "Women your faith has made you well." We see the same things happening to the blind man Bartimaeus in Mark 10:52 (NKJV) where he said "Rabboni (Teacher), that I may receive my sight," and the Lord said "Go your way; your faith has made you well." When we start to understand that the Holy Spirit is a friend who sticks closer than a brother and wants to help us in every aspect in our lives because He is the Comforter (Parakletos which is Greek), the Encourager, the Counsellor and the Advocate. He is available for you and me.

All we have to do is call upon Him. I have started to do that more now than ever before in my life, because I am realising like never before

Thoughts on Sharing the Gospel

by Waldo Malan

Today, many people are not willing to pay that price, and so the good news becomes watered down, a meal prepared with sub-standard ingredients, and shortcuts taken in the preparation. It is time that we dust off the original recipe and start afresh, take what is required and offer others the meal of meals!

We have this great commission from Christ to go into the whole world and share the Gospel. Before we are able to respond the commission we have to respond to Christ Himself, since the commission will just be another job if not motivated by a personal relationship. This simply means that if we even attempt to abide by the instructions of the commission without first having a personal experience with the giver of the commission we have already failed. We can storm the streets with tracts and Bibles, stand on corners with bull-horns and speak about Jesus, compare the numbers of "souls saved" from the records we keep, and still remain ineffective in connecting those very same people on the street with the love of God. The commission without Jesus is just another task to be done, and ultimately devoid of power.

The word "gospel" is taken from the Old English word godspel, which is made up of the word god (good) and spel (story, message); literally it means "good message" which is sometimes translated in moderns English as "good news." Essentially the gospel is good news and not doctrine; it is not a set of rules, a behaviour thermometer, or an attitude gauge... it simply is good news. Jesus defined the message of good news rather simply - it is to show people that there is freedom to be truly loved, truly valued, and truly estimated in a relationship with God. The good news is simply to show people that they can be free from fear, disappointed, rejection, sickness and worthlessness by accepting the love and grace from a Father burning to give these away as a free gift. The good news in essence is simply a call to be loved and to love in return.

Once the good news has been tasted it sparks a response in us to serve it to others as a gourmet meal. We have an option here in the way in which to share this. Firstly, we can open the recipe book and read to others the precise ingredients to use, the exact measurements of the ingredients, the ideal temperature of the stove, the time it will take to prepare, the garnishes to complete the meal, and even show them a photograph of the finished product. Alternatively, we can present people with the finished product, let them taste it first and as a bonus send them away with the detailed recipe so they can continue to make the same meal for sharing with others. I can guarantee you that the people most impacted by our interaction with them would be the ones who actually tasted the food first.

The word "gospel" is taken from the Old English word godspel, which is made up of the word god (good) and spel (story, message); literally it means "good message" which is sometimes translated in moderns English as "good news." Essentially the gospel is good news and not doctrine; it is not a set of rules, a behaviour thermometer, or an attitude gauge... it simply is good news.

It would be silly to deny that Jesus called us to spread the gospel. So we don't. But it is really up to us how effective we will be in fulfilling the commission successfully. I can think of no better way that to look at the example of Jesus on how to "do" this commission - after all, Jesus was simply asking us to do what we have already seen Him doing.

Jesus offered Himself as the 'meal of all meals' and the "dish above all other." And I mean no disrespect by this analogy. It was Jesus who said He is the 'Bread of Life' (already proclaimed in the Holy Place in the temple), and it was He who offered His disciples His blood to drink. Since He was the ultimate sacrifice, obviously we cannot offer exactly the same. However, we are called to offer ourselves to Christ, forsaking even our very lives. In this way, we too can offer others what Christ had first offered us. No greater love has man than to lay down his life for others. And so, we need to offer up our very life in order to 'do' as Christ 'did.' We then share His suffering, and in so doing, share His love.

To 'do' the commission of Christ will require everything from us, and it will require us to be nothing in ourselves so that we can be everything in Christ. In essence, the good news we bring is totally dependent on us obeying Christ until death. And in our death Christ is glorified, and this is the good news.

Today, many people are not willing to pay that price, and so the good news becomes watered down, a meal prepared with sub-standard ingredients, and shortcuts taken in the preparation. It is time that we dust off the original recipe and start afresh, take what is required and offer others the meal of meals! 📌

Suffering For Your Children

By Martie du Plessis

Paul writes in Romans 8:12 that all children of God are led by the Spirit of God. He goes on to say that if suffer with Christ they will also be glorified with Him. I believe that a part of this suffering is extended to our personal lives as we erect boundaries around our families and also for the sake of our children.

It seems as if parents, in general, are more interested in staying within known comfort zones, rather than exploring avenues that could yield better results. The fact is that in “the last days” parents will have to be much clearer in vision, giving direction, setting an example and the disciplining of their families.

Parents do need to realize that they might have to suffer for the sake of truth and the protection of their families, more than ever before. I want to give some real life examples of how parents are prepared to suffer for their children, and through these give the assurance that the fruit is very much worthwhile.

I see how concerned, Godly mothers would start a prayer group at their child’s school for the sake of godliness at these schools. These mothers become like watchdogs in the school community where headmasters and teachers need to reckon with them. Overall the school environment is morally safer than schools where there are no parents praying or keeping decision makers accountable.

Many parents would take their children out of school and home educate them rather than entertaining suggestions to put their child in a ‘special class’ or putting them on medication, if in actual fact their child only needs a more individualised form of education. The fruit of this change results in a child with a much better sense of belonging, worthiness and competence.

I see a father taking his sons out of boarding school to safeguard them from the pressure of watching pornography with friends. These families ‘suffer’ especially when the mom was not necessarily ready for the radical step of home-schooling the children. In many instances the dads also take on the role of educating the children; while at times this is uncharted territory, they do this because they believe it is the right thing to do. The result is a child rescued from perversion because a father was willing to pay the price and suffer the consequences of initial personal inconveniences. I witness how career women adjust their lives for the sake of a child in need.

They give up a secure careers and huge salaries in obedience to the voice of God to be a stay-at-home-mom to educate their children. In many instances it entails a move to a smaller house, having just one car and fewer holidays, yet more quality family time and spiritually whole children.

Many parents put down boundaries with regards to freedom in using technological devices such as cell phones, tablets and television. At times these families suffer and are labelled as 'old fashioned,' yet most children and adults are negatively addicted to technology without even knowing it. According to Nir Eyal in his book Hooked, "79% of smartphone owners check their device within 15 minutes of waking up every morning.

Perhaps more startling, fully one-third of Americans say they would rather give up sex than lose their cell phones. A 2011 university study suggested people check their phones thirty-four times per day. However, industry insiders believe that number is closer to an astounding 150 daily sessions. We're hooked. The technologies we use have turned into compulsions, if not full-fledged addictions. It's the impulse to check a message notification.

It's the pull to visit You Tube, Facebook, or Twitter for just a few minutes, only to find yourself still tapping and scrolling an hour later."

Responsible parents see the dangers of these addictions in advance and put measures in place to address a discipline where a technology can be a tool and not an addiction. One such an example is to listen and follow the Word of God on your phone first thing in the morning before starting to interact with others. More and more families are opting not to watch television programmes that negatively impact their spirituality, and also add to a waste of time.

I want to inspire parents with children in public schools, to fight for the right of their children not to be sent away to other therapy centres, but rather for their own schools to have small centres where these special needs can be addressed. I challenge churches to start centres for the special needs of gifted children in their churches. Where it is possible for parents to home educate their children it is preferable to letting them suffer and be fearful of life. When a child feels he or she is no delight to others, they are traumatised and it affects their pursuit of the purposes of God in their lives.

Parents and grandparents need to live by example now more than ever before, and to model higher Biblical values. All parents need to have a clear vision of where they want to take their children and need to be prepared to suffer for it.

Oswald Chambers in My Utmost for His Highest writes, "God gives us the vision, then He takes us down to the valley to batter us into the shape of the vision, and it is in the valley that so many of us faint and give way. Every vision will be made real if we will have patience. Think of the enormous leisure of God! He is never in a hurry. We are always in such a frantic hurry. In the light of the glory of the vision we go forth to do things, but the vision is not real in us yet; and God has to take us into the valley, and put us through fires and floods to batter us into shape, until we get to the place where He can trust us with the veritable reality."

The road that we walk with our children and grandchildren is a journey not for the faint-hearted. It is a road of changing first, and then to be an example for those who follow. As time goes on I become increasingly aware of the price we have to pay to ensure close relationships with family members, and that they have an example to live life, not only for themselves but also for those who follow them. ▣

Hello boys and girls

BY ESTHER SAUNDERS

Jazz and I have been thoroughly enjoying the school holidays. Mom even took us out to go and watch a movie. I love warm popcorn with butter, salt and a soda.

We watched a very cool movie about the different feelings you experience, feelings of happiness, sadness, fear and even anger, and how these feelings produce actions. Sometimes positive but many times negative actions.

The Bible says in Timothy 1:7 "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." The Bible is telling us what God Himself says about our mind, that it is sound! Sound? Not a noisy mind but a mind that is fully functional and able to think clearly.

Mommy explained that it is normal to feel sad, fearful or lonely sometimes because we are human and we become affected by the circumstances and things that surround us. But it is important to not let those negative feelings turn into negative actions but to pray and ask God to help you work through those feelings so that you can walk in the power, love and sound mind that God promises in His Word.

A sound mind also refers to your ability to think. That's your intelligence. That means that God promises through this scripture that He will give you the wisdom you need to do your school work with excellence. That failure is not from God but that if you are struggling you can pray and ask Him to give you wisdom. You also need to do your part and be diligent in your studies and seek extra help from a teacher if you are struggling.

Mommy always encourages us that when we are sad or afraid to say a prayer to ask God to help us overcome those feelings. She tells us that Jesus is like superman. He has all the special powers needed to defeat the devil. She also says that God gives us mommies and daddies and friends that are there as God's agents to help us to overcome negative feelings and circumstances as well. It is important to talk to someone you trust if you are experiencing a feeling or problem that feels too big to handle on your own.

Today I feel happy, safe and secure knowing that I am a child of God and that I have Jesus on my side. I encourage you to spend time praying and reading about Jesus and all the great men and women in the Bible who Jesus helped overcome obstacles and walk in His great victory. Put all your trust in Jesus, obey Him and see all the great plans He has for you come alive in your life. ✦

Dear Lord Jesus, thank You for giving me such a wonderful intelligent mind. Thank You that even when I feel sad, lonely or afraid that I can put my trust in You to help me overcome these feelings. Thank you for giving me a mommy and daddy who are always there to help me cope with life's challenges. Amen

MISSIONS TRAINING PROGRAM

BY: PS LESEGO MALEMELA

"For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent?" [Romans 10:13-15]

"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." [Mark 16:15]

The above quoted verses classify our mandate as believers; Evangelist Reinhard Bonnke in his book: Evangelism By Fire quotes a statements that says: "we are a 'Go' Church, not a 'Sit' Church." The common perception in the body of Christ in this day and age is that evangelists, pastors and all those called in the 5-fold are the only ones called to bring in the harvest of souls, however that is not so, the Five-Fold is called to equip the body for the work of the ministry according to Ephesians 4:12.

"For God so loved the World" in John 3:16 is still as relevant today as it was when Jesus said it, His love is still calling out to the lost today as radical as it did the day Jesus died on that Cross. The harvest is truly plenteous and we have been given a mandate to 'Go'.

Every Tribe Missions is one of the vehicles that have been strategically called by God to go out into remote areas and communities to fulfil the great commission. The word commission according to the dictionary is: A formal statement of a command or injunction to do something; so the Bible does not suggest for us to go into the world, it commands for us to do so. As the church we are an army that submits under the Chief Commander (Jesus) and He said 'Go ye'; one of the marks of a strong army is submission to commands, however as the Church of Jesus Christ we do not win the lost because we are compelled to do so, we do it because our love for God births within us the love for what God loves and souls are primary on that list.

As our passion for God eventually increases it gives birth to passion for the things that concern Him, and the salvation of the souls of men are among the closest to the heart of God; He didn't save us so we can belong to the 'Christian Club', He did that to extend influence through us. We are, as the Bible would call us the Body of Christ and Christ Himself is the head (Colossians 1:18), and if the head is to ever go anywhere the Body has to engage it's facilities and limbs. If Jesus is to ever touch and change humanity, the Church (body) has to go out into the harvest fields. We are the hands and feet of Jesus and if He ever was to change this generation and those to come it will be through us; we have been entrusted with the message of hope, the only hope for humanity which is the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

We are living in the end times and it is time for all hands to be on deck, 2 Corinthians 5:18 clearly states that He has redeemed us and has given us the task of redeeming others to Him, maximum impact will only happen if we all put our hands on the plough and bring in the harvest of souls into the Kingdom like never before.

Practically according to scripture every-one who has been redeemed is called into the ministry...

That is the ministry of reconciliation. We do not have to be pastors or any of the office in the 5-Fold; but as a businessman, administrator, teacher, and doctor or any other profession or vocation we have been called to make an impact and expand the Kingdom of God in our areas of Influence, of which that is our mission field.

God is looking for men and women who will partner with His eternal vision as declared in 2 Peter 3:9 "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." As the word quotes God desires for ALL to come to repentance, hence we go into ALL the world.

One of the greatest joyful moments I have experienced was seeing a life eternally transformed by the power of the Gospel of Jesus from darkness into His marvellous light; and to imagine that He did not assign the ministry of reconciliation to angels or any other being but us to be a part of that... what a great privilege and an honour.

Let us go out there and tell the world of the greatness we have in Jesus, they are desperately in need of Him and we have the power to shed abroad the light in their hearts and to have their lives eternally impacted. ✦

STUDIO PROJECT DAY 105: 150 DAYS TO GO UPDATE

DAY 105: Prayer Chapel 3D conceptual rendering

Since our last update so much has happened! Let us start off with the “not-so-good” news first – during the removal of some of the old wooden floor one of the main water lines for the top floor was punctured and we sustained some water damage to the tenants on the lower floors. The team was quick to rectify the damage and managed to contain the ‘flood’ to a minimum. Apart from this little incident all the rest of the news is good! Roughly 50% of the old floor is either lifted or replaced by concrete, as you can see on the drawing made by our building manager. Much of the wood from the floor has been packed and freighted to Cape Town. Every time we walk on site there is an air of expectancy to see the whole project fully complete. We are amazed at the goodness of God, and thank Him daily for the amazing team He has put in place. The municipal approval on the final changes by the architects has now also been officially approved – this is an on-going process and critical to the overall progress. The corner Prayer Chapel has also undergone some conceptual changes and the architects submitted this in the week – we are super-excited about all the changes and wait in anticipation to see the final work!

Don't be misled into believing the work that is happening at headquarters is located on the fourth only. On the “lower decks” all hands are occupied in doing the daily tasks that keep Faith Broadcasting Network on the air, and your favourite programmers and presenters ‘in your lounge!’ In a manner of speaking “all hands are on deck.”

We are further happy to report that to date all the partners who have joined in the vision of seeing God's kingdom extended have pledged 44,11 % of the initial R30-million budget. This is a 1,35% increase from our last update and equates to just over R13,2 million, of which roughly 42% has been received. The team of Faith Broadcasting Network is very privileged to have so many like-minded people at their side and is honoured to call them friends! We praise God for such faithful partners. There are daily calls and emails from people all over the world who are pledging support, both in prayer and finances, for the project. We know that God commands His blessing where there is unity, and so together and united we believe to see the entire renovation completed on time.

Thank you for your continued support in prayer and finances - we value your partnership greatly! To give you some practical insight into the timeline of the project, and also to help you pray specifically for each stage in this phase of the development, here is an anticipated timeline (we will keep updating you with the latest news as the plans unfold!

Feelings Versus Truth

By Bradley Kirsten

As a believer in Jesus, have you ever just taken some time to think about what you believe and why you believe it? It's not something we think about too often, because we know the path we've chosen, and now we walk it, getting on with things. It must be said though, that if you spare a thought for what it is that you have chosen to believe and what it means to you, now and into eternity, it's a pretty incredible thing! And to think that other say 'NO!' to an opportunity to be born again, and to have Christ guide their lives! Why would they say 'no' to that? There are a bucket load of bad excuses that get thought up when that question is posed, but I'd hazard a guess that one of them is because people want to live life on their own terms. 'God has all these rules and I want to be free. Now I can just do whatever I want, when I want, and I don't have to feel guilty about it!' Ever heard that before? There is a whole number of ways to respond to this sort of statement, but the one I have been thinking about most of late is this: When someone chooses this so-called 'freedom', there is now nothing with which to gauge any behaviour. Without a true measuring device, no one can tell you you're good or bad, and this helps with guilt feeling in the short term, but in more difficult moments, when it's less about behaviour and more about circumstance, you're still without a rudder. How can someone have hope when times are tough; because when you look to yourself, you're just finding hurt, or that guilt again that's come around to bite you on the ankle.

If your hope is in you, and you're already feeling desperate and broken, then you're trying to draw water from a stone. There's only emptiness to call on, and positive self-talk feels like it's been written on a wet dish cloth. Now you're left staring at a brick wall, next to a sign that says: DEAD END. Freedom, hey?

As someone who has surrendered their life to Christ, a tough situation looks completely different. People have been known to call Christianity a 'crutch', and I agree because without Jesus I am broken, so a crutch is exactly what I need! Now, when I'm feeling like the world is falling apart, and that I'm alone, and unloved, or the future seems hopeless, I don't hear my voice echoing out in the empty hall of desperation, because I now have Truth, and with that a weapon to render those negative feelings worthless. Even if I'm feeling low and I can't see the light, the Truth reminds me that there is a light. How can I feel unloved if I read John 3:16 or 1John 4:10 or Romans 8:37 or Psalm 86:15? The Truth doesn't change, but our feelings are like a teeny tiny boat on a raging ocean. The Truth calms the waters and stills our fears. Sounds like a familiar Bible story, doesn't it?

It's time to be bolstered by the Truth of who God is and how He sees us, by spending time in His Word.

Let me finish with the moral of that story out of Mark chapter 4: Despite the very presence of Jesus in our lives, we can still be very afraid of what life throws at us, the problem doesn't lie there. The problem is when the very presence of a loving and mighty God still doesn't calm our fears, when we follow our feelings and say He doesn't care, just like the disciples did. It's time to see our God as the One who is everything we need, because faith in Him can never be misplaced. It's time to be bolstered by the Truth of who God is and how He sees us, by spending time in His Word. Now you're armed and ready to bomb those negative feelings all the way to next Tuesday because the Truth really will set you free. ■

Heartbeat 2015

"Every woman who spoke at the Heartbeat 2015 event is such a special Angel of God and an inspiration to ALL woman out there!"

This was a comment posted on the Real Women Real Life (RWRL) Facebook page shortly after the Heartbeat 2015 event that was held in June at Choose Life Church, Moreleta Park, Pretoria. This sentiment was shared by hundreds of women who attended the event and who were part of the live studio audience.

The RWRL lifestyle talk show is hosted by Tracy Tredrea and is broadcast weekly, not only in South Africa, but across Africa and internationally. Tracy uses this platform to explore inspiring stories of hope, victory and joy, challenging women to reach new levels of personal growth and to make a difference in their lives and in the lives of others. Her message to women is: "You are valuable. You are precious. You are destined for greatness! Irrespective of what life has thrown at you, you can be victorious and live a life of abundance."

In true Oprah-style, Heartbeat 2015 was recorded in front of a live studio audience for the second time ever. Members of the audience were treated to gifts and give-aways, snacks and refreshments, and, of course, special guests who were 'Angels of God', as quoted by a Facebook fan. These 'Angels of God' were Leanne Dlamini, Lyndie McCauley, Jenny Roebert and Vanessa Goosen.

Leanne Dlamini captured everyone's hearts with her breath-taking opening of the 2015 Heartbeat event and ended off with a powerful upbeat song that had everyone up on their feet, dancing. Pastor Lyndie McCauley delivered a powerful message on how to make God your anchor, despite life's challenges. Jenny Roebert, in true energetic and enthusiastic Jenny-style, gave an inspiring word on the value that lies within the Word of God and how it can activate you to pursue your calling.

Vanessa Goosen, who was imprisoned when she was just three months pregnant and spent 16 years in a prison in Thailand, gave an astounding testimony on how, despite a death sentence, she started ministering to mothers in prison. Vanessa is the epitome of a courageous woman who is filled with God's grace and love.

Through RWRL, Tracy is making an incredible difference to the lives of women who watch her talk show. Tracy is truly blessed in so many ways. She is a strong, beautiful woman, inside and out, with an amazingly supportive husband and two gorgeous children. Tracy has taken her blessings and God-given strengths and is using them to bless other women, who need strength, support and inspiration, through her talk show.

Tracy had this to say a few days after the event: "Still standing in awe of what God did on Saturday at Heartbeat 2015! What a time of powerful words from such women of faith! Heartbeat was an event that will change lives forever. Daughters of the King are ready to fight for their calling. What a blessing! A personal thank you to every woman who attended and was part of the audience! You make me smile every time I think of you! With so much love to you from a heart very full...lots of love Tracy."

Why Christians Need to Visit Museums

BY PHIL COOKE

Our world is shaped by innovation—the newest iPhone, the latest Netflix show or the most current social media app. It's hard to imagine a world without these devices, but iPhones have only been around since 2007, unlimited streaming on Netflix came the year after and Facebook is a young company at just eleven years old. The world before this unlimited access to information now seems archaic, but staring at "devices" all day can prevent us from seeing the bigger picture. The bright light of the screen can be more than a little blinding.

Fortunately, there are remedies for this. Increasingly, many American families have employed restraints like digital curfews, no more screen time after, say, 9 PM. Others make a more substantial effort to reconnect with the larger community by joining clubs or leagues. Museums, however, offer us the best opportunity to shed our often streamlined worldview to better connect with history and understand current events in a way that can impact and shape our lives. While technology has made amazing advances that have changed the way we learn about the world, nothing can come close to the total immersion we can experience at a museum.

In Washington, D. C., considered by some to be the museum capital of the world, museums are so much more than buildings full of dusty old artefacts. They are finding new ways to be innovative by combining technology with cultural heritage and education to bring us the best of both worlds.

A perfect example is the new Museum of the Bible in Washington, D.C. which will house some of the rarest and most important artefacts related to the Bible. It opens in 2017, two blocks from the National Mall. The Museum founders hope it will be a place for people to "engage with the Bible" not only through artefacts, but also through a multimedia production of the biblical narrative and with spaces that discuss the impact the Bible has had on the world through the ages.

Even though we live in a world of unlimited streaming, there are some things we just can't find on the Internet. Turning to museums to better understand events of today lets us not just sift through endless browser pages, but implant ourselves at the root of an issue and examine it from multiple angles. They offer insight on present-day issues, along with exhibits that are just plain fun and interesting.

Museums help us pause and look back amid a culture that is always looking ahead to the next innovation. That's exactly why we need more of them. ▣

Be Careful Before Starting a Lawsuit over a Social Media Post

I've spent time on this blog warning social media users about inappropriate posts. But should a church, non-profit, or company start a lawsuit over a critical social media post? According to recent news reports, employers are experiencing real challenges when they try to sue employees – even when those employees are critical of the companies they work for. Even when people Facebook or Twitter bad news about the organization, or get drunk and post something highly critical, it's very tough to pursue them in court. Even in the rare cases where a company wins, they usually lose the PR battle. In other words, in the social media world, tread very carefully.

It's the wild-west out there, with lots of potential minefields for organizations of all types. For instance, someone could potentially sue a boss for sexual harassment after he repeatedly tries to "friend" him or her on Facebook. Or employers might pull a job offer after learning personal information from an applicant's social media site. All kinds of things – religious affiliation, activism, political positions and more are suddenly in the public domain and bound to be seen by potential and current employers. But lawsuits against employees and others have proven to be very difficult to win. In a 2009 case, one company sued employees over comments on a social media page that they felt violated their core values. But not only did they lose, they were required to pay the employees thousands of dollars in damages.

My advice? First – get the right counsel from an attorney that understands social media, and advice from social media experts. It's tricky stuff, and the old rules about office behaviour don't necessarily apply.

Second, jump into the stream of social media yourself. Learn the unwritten rules about online behaviour – what's considered personal, public, serious, and funny. Otherwise, you'll blunder into a huge (and expensive) misstep. It doesn't matter if you consider yourself a "traditional" media expert. Social media is turning everything on its head.

Finally – Understand that PR has changed in a digital age. Often, traditional press releases don't make nearly the splash as blog posts or even Twitter posts. In a social media world, the nexus of influence is changing, and you need to stay on top of that change.

WITHOUT A TRACE

Lesley Pearse

Lesley Pearse author of 23 books to date. She writes a compelling story that has you emotionally invested in the characters right from the beginning.

Lesley was told as a child that she had too much imagination for her own goos. When she grew up she worked her way through a number of jobs, including nanny, bunnygirl, dressmaker and a full time mother before at the age of forty nine, she became a published writer. She has become an internationally bestselling author, with over seven million copies of her books sold worldwide.

International number one bestselling author Lesley Pearse brings a compelling story of courage, friendship and love in her brand new novel Without a Trace.

SYNOPSIS

Coronation Day, 1953.

In the Somerset village of Sawbridge, young shopkeeper Molly Heywood slips away from the celebrations to her friend's cottage and makes a shocking discovery: Cassie is dead and her six-year-old daughter Petal has vanished without a trace.

In her grief, Molly seeks help from her childhood friend George, now the village policeman, but no one can find Petal. The only clue is a letter from London, where Cassie once lived. Despite George's reluctance and her growing feelings for him, Molly resolves to go to London in the hope of discovering the missing child.

Arriving in the big city, Molly quickly learns it's a dangerous place for a country girl on her own. But there's hope too - in the Blitz-ruined East End, she unexpectedly finds friendship with strangers from Cassie's past and, with handsome, mysterious workman Charley, the possibility of something more. However, the closer Molly gets to the truth, the more perilous her journey becomes. She has given up everything - her home, happiness and a chance at love - all to find Petal. But is she also risking her life? ❖

Review by Patricia Kruger

You really feel as if you are there alongside Molly as she battles through life to find her happy ending. This is a novel of mystery, romance and also of a journey. We see transformation from a young girl longing for independence but yet unwillingly to break free. The writer shows a character of self determination out to achieve her fulfilment for herself and justice for her friend. Without a Trace is simply an unmissable book, chock full of depth and emotion. The story was a bit slow, did not expect twist at the end. Good... but not as gripping as most of her other novels.
